Arts, Science Undergrads Elect Stewart President; Brown New Treasurer

Record Freshman Crowd Votes; Spencer President of 1st Year

The executive of the Arts and Science Undergraduate Society has been completed, with Ronald D. Stewart as the new President and Bill Brown as the new Treasurer. Executives for the second, third and fourth years have all been acclaimed, with the exception of the president of second year, while in the Freshman year twelve students were nominated for the three executive positions. Elections for these were held last Thursday. Voting for the President of the second year will be held this Thursday.

Executive positions in the Arts and Science Undergraduate Society were filled last spring. The President and Treasurer had to resign recently, however, as the former was accepted into the faculty of Medicine, while the latter did not expect to return to college. Nominated were Ronald Stewart and Norm Halford. The latter withdrew his nomination. In accepting the presidency, Mr. Stewart stated that he looked forward to an active year, and expressed the hope that the students would support the society's ambitious program wholeheartedly. Mr. Brown, who was acclaimed as treasurer, could not be contacted for comment, but a spokesman for the executive mentioned that he has had much organizational experience (e.g. as manager of the Book Exchange) and that he was most qualified for the position of treasurer.

First Year Posts

Last Thursday, following English 2 lecture, elections for the Freshman representatives were held. In all there were three nominated as President, six as Vice-President, and six as Secretary-Treasurer. Despite the strong competition, Jim Spencer, Norm Drummond and Jim Kendry were voted into the three positions respectively, with good majorities, indicating that they were popular choices.

Missionary Surgeon To Show Films on India; Open To All Students

Dr. Bernadine Siebers will present films illustrating her work as a missionary surgeon in India, in lecture room "A" on the main floor of the Medical Building, Tuesday, October 24th, at 5.00 p.m. This showing is open to all students added to the executive.

Dr. Siebers is a member of the Surgical staff of the Women's Missionary Medical School, Vellore, India. She will introduce the films with a few explanatory remarks. At the close of the meeting there will be a period for questions.

Dr. Siebers gained her medical training at the Rush Medical School in Chicago. She is at present home on furlough, and is at McGill for specialized study. She hopes to be able to return to her post next year. The Missionary centre at Vellore is an interdenominational and international establishment.

Veterans' Executive To Be Elected Tuesday

Announcement of a meeting of the Students Veterans Society for Tuesday, October 24, was made by officials last night. The Society, which held an organizational meeting last week, drew up a constitution and laid plans for election of executive, which will take place at the forthcoming meeting.

The organization is designed to provide a medium for veterans to meet their colleagues and discuss mutual problems; according to officials, who express the hope that all returned men on the campus will attend the meeting.

Dr. Karl Stern To Address S.C.M. Group

Study Group Will Attend First Medical

Dr. Karl Stern will be the first speaker at the newly formed S.C.M. medical study group, on Wednesday, October 25th at 7 p.m., at the S.C.M. house, 3574 University street, the committee announced.

The speaker is the director of the Neuro-psychiatric Research Laboratory of the new Allan Institute. He is also a lecturer in psychiatry as well as the neuropathologist at Verdun Protestant Hospital and the Montreal Neurological Institute. Originally from Europe, he received most of his education in European universities and has done much research work in England.

The topic of his address is believed to be "Is a human being just a chemical formula?"

Varied Topics Offered

The S.C.M. medical study group was formed by several medical students interested in the many social, philosophical, educational, psychological and religious problems which arise in the medical world. To discuss and grasp the various points of views of people in all walks of life as well as to understand and recognize their problems, this group intends to meet every Wednesday at 7 p.m. The outline of the things to be discussed will come under such headings as (1) Education of a medical student, (2) "the so called" ethics of a doctor, (3) Religious and philosophical problems of a doctor, (4) Sociological problems of a doctor, (5) Doctor's role in the communities, (6) Human understanding, and so on.

The arrangement of this program informal discussion will be such that, on one week there will be a guest speaker and the following week a general discussion on the same topic. This discussion group will be under an organizational leader who will probably be Dr. Gordon Hatcher for this year. By this method, one of the committee members said, it is hoped that the group can learn and consider various views given by guest speakers specialized in different fields appropriate for the various themes.

Pre Meds Discuss

Pre Requisites Tuesday

A general meeting of all pre-medical students has been called for Tuesday, Oct. 24, at 5.15 p.m. in the Union ballroom, stated the executive. This meeting will take the form of a debate. At the present time there is a great deal of consternation among pre-medical students concerning the lack of knowledge about courses that the medical faculty considers essential or desirable as a preparation for entrance into medical college.

Unless serious objections arise this and all subsequent meetings will be held on Tuesday afternoons, added the executive.

Players' Club Begins Season By Elections

John Mellor Back From New York Speaks on Plays

Janet Dixon and Nell Lau were elected to the executive of the Players' Club as Second Vice-President and Treasurer respectively, at the meeting last Friday afternoon. In addition, the play-reading committee for the following season was chosen and Director John Mellor was introduced to the new members.

With the elections and the formation of the committee, the club now has a complete executive with which to start the forthcoming production. Janet Dixon was in last year's play, "What Say They." As the Second Vice-President, she will be in charge of membership this year. Nell Lau is a relative newcomer to the club, but he has already signified his enthusiasm by accepting the position of Treasurer.

The Play-Reading Committee, headed by Workshop Chairman, Anne Hughes, was chosen later in the meeting. It will be in charge of reading all the plays that come up for the consideration by the club, and of deciding which plays would be suitable for production.

John Mellor, director of the Players' Club for the past eight years, was present, and he spoke a few words to the new members of the club. He urged that the play-reading committee to begin work at once on two plays which would be suitable for production. This was Mr. Mellor's first meeting with the club since the holidays as he has been in New York for the summer.

Afterwards, a short informal discussion was held on some of the plays which had been mentioned previously during the first meeting.

News Writing Taught Cubs At Lecture

Facts, Not Views Make Up Story, Explains Editor

How to avoid Editorial Comment in writing a news story, was the subject of the second lecture on journalism, sponsored by The Daily, which was held in the Music Room of the Union on Friday. The speaker was Charles Wassermann, News Editor of The Daily.

"Editorial Comment can be defined as all that subject matter in an ordinary news story, which the reader might find controversial," declared the speaker. Outlining, with the help of practical examples, the various forms in which the editorial comment might appear in a story, Wassermann explained.

McGill Innovation Provides Housing Service for Students

Mrs. N. B. MacLean Is Handling Problems of Out-of-town Students Registering at McGill

By RUSS TAYLOR
(Daily Staff Writer)

Accommodation for nearly two hundred students has been found by the McGill Housing Registry in the last five weeks, an achievement requiring over five hundred contacts with Montreal residents and involving numerous details which had to be attended to during registration week.

Success for this venture is due entirely to its organizer, Mrs. N. B. MacLean, wife of Lieutenant Colonel N. B. MacLean, in her capacity as chairman of the Students Interest Committee of the Women's Association of McGill. Due to the personal contact needed in arranging residence for students, Mrs. MacLean found it necessary to do most of the work herself and feels that the marked success of her venture, coupled with the urgent need of an out of town student for just this service, guarantee its continuance.

Providing a student with a list of available rooms and boarding houses, is not satisfactory for many reasons, and the Housing Registry was organized to overcome the deficiencies of this system. Students unfamiliar with the City were no longer obliged to hunt addresses in the hope of finding the vacancy still there when they arrive. Instead they contacted Mrs. MacLean who knew from numerous phone calls, what was available, and she took all particulars, correlating the students desires with those of the ladies offering homes.

While the Registry was primarily for the men, there were some special cases which came to Mrs. MacLean, and on one occasion at least she was able to find residence for a married couple. The young husband who posed this problem was a student from Iceland with his Icelandic bride. Placing this couple is one of the Registry's chief prizes because it achieved satisfaction for both the student and the landlady—something Mrs. MacLean particularly strives for, knowing that no other outcome really solves the problem of student accommodation. With a fine touch for tactful arrangements, she has invariably saved students from any embarrassment by giving complete details to both parties before arranging personal contacts between the student and the home. The "boys" as Mrs. MacLean says, are still enthusiastically endorsing this careful policy.

To carry out the program outlined by the Registry, Mrs. MacLean brings experience and resources resulting from eight years work with the Y.W.C.A., and more latterly three years entertaining and helping service men whom she contacted through open house activities of the "Y". She likes working with young men, and has a keen interest in McGill.

The Women's Associates, whose members are wives of the Governors and Faculty heads at the University, have long had a Students Interest Committee, but scope of the work has been much enlarged under Mrs. MacLean's guidance. Former activities of the Committee, such as hospital visits, will be continued, while plans for increasing the effectiveness of the Housing Registry are under way. Problems met this year will be smoothed over by the time Registration comes around again as this McGill innovation goes into another year.

Sailors Overcome Early Lead In Last Minutes of Close Game To Snatch Win on Muddy Field

Hill, Lapointe Speak To IRC in Union Tonight

Miss Ruth Hill and Mr. Marc Lapointe will address the International Relations Club this evening in the Union Grill Room at 8 p.m. on "The Institute of World Affairs". The speakers attended the Institute during the summer for two months.

Miss Ruth Hill is a graduate in Arts of McGill, 1942. She has been studying law and sociology as graduate studies. Mr. Lapointe received his B.A. in 1943 from a classical college and entered the Faculty of Law where he is now in his second year.

The International Relations Club is dedicated to the study of international problems from a non-partisan viewpoint. All students are welcome to the meetings which are held in informal atmosphere and where discussion is encouraged.

Dr. Heilperin Gives Talk

Stable Finance Held Necessary To World Peace

"World trade is what we are after, and the Bretton Woods Conference is the first step," stated Dr. Michael Heilperin in an address to McGill students in Moyse Hall Saturday. "The United Nations are way ahead of the economic timetable of the last war, and we will be able to meet the difficulties encountered, taking our lesson from results of monetary conferences after 1919."

Dr. Heilperin discussed the basic problems of the world monetary condition, and stated the aims of the Conference were to establish an orderly monetary situation in the world.

"Success of the International Monetary Fund and other recommendations depends on the wisdom and good judgment of the management which will normalize or stabilize monetary relations, limit foreign exchange control and establish an agency for experts to 'work together'," he continued.

In conclusion, Dr. Heilperin praised the work of the Conference, and expressed the hope of a sound world monetary policy which will go great lengths in 'keeping the peace.'

Poles Hold Centennial Of Institution

Malczynski To Play In Moyse Hall For Polish Ceremony

To commemorate the centennial of the founding of the Institute of Technology in Lwow, Poland, a meeting of the Canadian Branch, Polish Institute of Arts and Science in America was announced for October 26, at 8.30 p.m. in Moyse Hall.

Officials of the Institute, in announcing the forthcoming meeting, stated that Principal F. Cyril James of McGill and Monsignor Olivier Maurault, Rector of Montreal University, will attend in their capacities of Honorary Presidents.

The release by the Institute stated that Mr. Witold Malczynski, eminent Polish pianist, will play at the ceremony.

Fumble Costly in 16-6 Decision; Farlinger Stars for Collegians;

Playing host to a more powerful Navy squad made up of sailors from H.M.C.S. Donnacona and St. Hyacinthe, the gallant Redmen missed their initial win of the season by only a few minutes at Molson Stadium on Saturday.

The McGill team held the lead in scoring 6-4 until the dying moments of the final quarter when the Navy uncorked two deceptive end runs in the shade of the Red team's goalposts to score two touchdowns and bring the final score up to 16-6 for the Sailors.

The sensational running and plunging by veteran stars Fraser Farlinger and Johnny Dixon paved the way for the McGill touchdown to snatch the lead away from the sailors in the third quarter. Evan MacCallum running very hard behind the Navy goal line pulled down a beautiful pass from quarterback Viv Cullen to give the Redmen the first touchdown of the season.

The disappointing weather conditions again played havoc with the McGill squad. Geared to a wide-open running and passing style of play by Coach Doug Kerr, the Redmen were forced by the rain and slippery, muddy field to play the game close to the line and trade plunges with the Navy squad.

Powerful Line

Reputed to have the most powerful line in the league, the heavier Navy squad was thus able to gain the advantage from the opening whistle. By virtue of the Redmen's brilliant showing in spite of the weather conditions many informed observers expressed their desire to see these two teams again in action, the new time however on a dry field when the lighter shifter McGill squad could display their brand of tactics.

Possessor of flashy quarterback Viv Cullen, perhaps the best passer in the league, the Redmen were able only once to open up and throw a pass at which opportunity Cullen and outside wing MacCallum clicked for the touchdown. Also most of the game the Red team was forced to continue close line play being hard-pressed deep in their own territory.

Plungers Effective

From the opening whistle in the first half the Navy line power proved to be obviously the sailors' main weapon. The brilliant running by Fraser Farlinger and long plunging gains by Johnny Dixon pulled the Redmen back up the field from the goal line time after time. Accurate, dependable kicking by the always rushed punters, Jon Ballon and Sammy Roth, drove back the determined sailors. Starring on the line, Dixon, Pennyfather, Walsh and Townsend repeatedly broke through to break up the threatening Navy drives while in the backfield Cullen, McCavour, Hendrie, Halford, and Farlinger proved the hardest to stop.

Turning their attack to their superior kicking-power by Davis and Abbott, the Navy squad ran up a four point lead in the first half on rouses behind the Red team's

Lawyers Gather To Hear Talk on England

Professor Scott Tells Impressions Of Bombed London

By J. H.

On Thursday last, some 30 prospective lawyers gathered together in their common room at Purvis Hall, to listen and to question Professor F. Scott, on his impressions of England.

Having only recently returned from London, the effects of the bombing, and, in particular, the damages caused by the "Robomb", were still very vivid in his memory. Professor Scott had been attending a Conference of the Labour Parties of the Empire.

The purpose of the "Robomb" stated Professor Scott, had been defeated. Despite the wanton destruction spread by it, the spirit of Londoners, he continued, was still undaunted. Britain's economic and political problems in the post-war world, were also discussed by the speaker.

The board urges Arts students to utilize their spare periods on Tuesday and Wednesday by having these pictures taken, with Commerce following on Thursday.

The Owl and the Case Of the Empty Bottle

(Synopsis: We left the Owl sometime last year, in the throes of avenging the spirit of one Conrad Cowflap (Eng. '62) stranded atop Mount Royal, until such time as some kind soul as the Owl would avenge his cruel death from an overdose of Houp-La Beer by doing in old Aristotele O'Bottle, owner of the Rotguttersnipen Breweries, and manufacturer of that famous beverage. —Ed.)

The Owl was in fine fettle. Four solid hours at that sink of Academic profligacy, The Heel Tavern, had rendered him very ebullient; especially since he had just won a tremendous argument on the subject of predestination. Lucifer O'Grogan, his arch-rival in all inebriated animadversions, (having made the dreadful mistake of insinuating that the Owl's blackened soul was booked for the hottest spot in Hades)—had been conclusively beaten, as two black eyes, a broken bottle of Houp-la, and the inert form of the aforementioned O'Grogan, mutely betokened.

Sagging out into the 430 traffic snarl, the Owl bravely lurched across the street, amid sundry squealings of brakes and honkings of horns; and paused against a convenient pillar to orient his scattered wits. Suddenly, to his horror, the pillar began to move, and a strong arm and hoof propelled him half way back to where he started from.

"Ces maudits ivrognes," growled the good doorman of the Count Royale, methodically dusting his palms. The Owl, scowlingly hurling dreadful imprecations in Ukrainian at his adversary; staggered to his feet: soundly cuffed the ears of two grinning little freshmen; and caromed down to St. Catherine street.

Commenting loudly on the lewdness of an embarrassed windowdresser, engaged in changing the lingerie of a glamorous-looking dummy, he suddenly noticed a grinning young man with huge padded shoulders laughing at his exclamations. "Aha ho!" roared the Owl, seizing the other by the scruff of the neck with long bony fingers. "Zoot-sulter, prepare thyself to meet thy ancestors."

"Assuredly," replied the other civilly, picking the Owl up like a babe in arms and holding him by the lapels at fist's length. "Where do you want it? On the nose, or in the teeth?" The Owl, chagrined that the huge shoulders were unfortunately all too real, —paused to let the weight of the dilemma sink home.

"Dear me!" he exclaimed in dulcet tones fit to turn the heart of a provincial traffic-cop to butter. "Er—I mistook you for a friend of mine,—Aristotele O'Bottle by name. Forgive my hastiness, my good fellow. I . . ."

"Did you say 'a friend of yours,' you overgrown goblin?" snorted the other menacingly.

The wretched Owl squirmed, fear lending sobriety to the horrible moment. Whether to reply 'yes' or 'no' was the immediate problem. He gulped noisily, breathed a silent prayer to St. Francis D'Assisi, or whoever looks after Owls, and mumbled "Er-ah-um, no!"

"Put it there, friend!" beamed Superman Jr., dropping the Owl on the curb with a resounding bump, and proffering a ham-like hand. "Any enemy of Aristotele O'Bottle is a pal of mine!"

The Owl gingerly shook hands, grinding his teeth in agony as the other sincerely crushed his knuckles to a pulp. "Yes," boomed the other, "I have a just reason to hate O'Bottle with a bitter hatred! My father . . ." (sniffing loudly into a huge polka-dot handkerchief), ". . . was one of the victims of his dreadful Houp-la Beer—Oh, how I hate the stuff!" (scowl), ". . . and especially . . ." (leering dreadfully at the Owl), ". . . do I hate anybody who patronizes the sinks of iniquity that purvey the insidious beverage!"

"Er, yes-yes!" the Owl hastily agreed, fumbling through a trousers pocket for his Temperance Badge, while striving not to breathe too freely into the earnest one's physiognomy. "Frightful, the way people lap up that concentrated strychnine! Someone should blow up the Rotguttersnipen Breweries, and rid Canada of such a menace!"

"By George!" exclaimed the other, snapping his fingers with glee. "What a brilliant thought, fellow! I'll blow the place sky-high myself, I will, or my name isn't Cornelius Cowflap!"

Time and Tide

Story of the Week

The story of the week concerns, it seems, a rather prim old lady who ventured into a crowded bookstore in Rochester, N.Y. She spent some time browsing around, though subjected to a good deal of ungentlemanly and unladylike shoving as she set her course for one object and another. Periodically she would find a book that seemed to interest her, and she would retreat with dignity to an unpopular corner and thumb the pages of her prize. Neither the sales-girls nor the other milling customers paid her more than momentary attention.

Nothing that she thumbed seemed to please her well enough for purchase, and she went on a protracted quest for something — apparently something special—which she did not manage to find. Several times, in vain, she appealed to a sales-girl; the other customers invariably closed in on her, pushed her gently but firmly aside, or monopolized the sales-girl's attention. Finally, with a dignified effort, she cleared her throat and said in a high, clear voice, "I beg your pardon, miss, are you busy?"

The customers turned slowly around and focussed on the little old lady. There was a tentative hush, and into it she spoke again. "Isn't it time for more of Mr. Gunther's 'Insides' to come out?" she said.

The Daily Meets SHIRLEY TEMPLE

—Jack Rishikof

At the breakfast table in the main dining room of the Ritz a Carlton Hotel, eating marmalade on toast with a glass of milk, Miss Shirley Temple, United Artist Star, met the Daily in an exclusive interview.

On seeing her personally, one readily understands why she has captured the hearts of millions. In contrast to a nervous young miss who had just before signed the Golden Book at the Mayor's Office, there sat pert, red-blonded Shirley, a poised young woman of 16, with still a trace of the round-cheeked appeal of "Little Miss Marker."

Her first words were the expression of her "love" of Montreal and the remarkable reception accorded to her. There was a slight air of disappointment in her voice that she was unable to see any of the great ice-palaces she had heard about down through her family, when she visited the Chalet.

Shirley's great-grandparents — their family name was Chartres — lived on Montreal's outskirts before moving to Chicago, and descriptions of the ice-palaces were passed on to Shirley by her mother, who in turn had heard them from her parents.

About her career: she is definitely set on the movies, having signed a 7-year contract with Darryl Zanuck. Her big comeback film is "Since You Went Away", now in showing in the U.S.A. She has just completed "I'll Be Seeing You", and expects to do the film version of "Kiss And Tell"; in both these films her name is linked with such stars as Claudette Colbert, Monty Woolley, Jennifer Jones, and Joseph Cotten.

But immediately she cautioned that at no time does she lose contact with her education. In fact she is a senior at West Lake School for Girls, Los Angeles, and when on tour she travels with her "homework." Her course is so arranged that some of her outside activities are counted as schoolwork. For instance, her speech at the St. Denis Theatre gained her credits in her French course, and a speech made for the New York Herald Tribune was marked for composition.

She admitted she had more success with her French in Montreal than in New York. "When I was in New York, I started off by calling the maître d'hôtel 'garçon,' which wasn't so good. When I ordered a 'Sea Food Special' and got snails, which I hate, I stopped trying to speak French. On the other hand, at 'Au Lutin Qui Bouffe,' I made another attempt; and even to my surprise, I got what I ordered." Shirley beamed when she added, "I am the French editor of our school newspaper, 'Pl.' The conversation turned to McGill, of which she spoke as a "place of learning whose fame has spread to the four corners of the world." She regretted being unable to visit the campus, due to

Letter Forum

To the Editor, McGill Daily.

Dear Sir: In past years, a number of charity drives have been held on the campus, usually calling upon the students for the nominal contribution of one dollar.

In many cases, the policy was adopted of giving out small lapel pins to those who contributed, as a sign of honor and an incentive to contribution. As a result, one could easily spot those who had contributed, and those who had not. The latter were accosted and approached continually, on all the central spots of the campus.

There are many students on the campus who although they would willingly contribute, find that their resources, limited at the outset, and strained by the expenditures necessitated by college life, do not permit these disbursements. They are therefore often subjected to embarrassment, which under the circumstances, is in very poor taste and totally unfair.

I propose that these drives be conducted in such a manner as to leave them completely on a voluntary basis, with no distinction at all made between those who have and those who have not contributed.

Yours truly,
FRED CLEMAN, Comm. II.

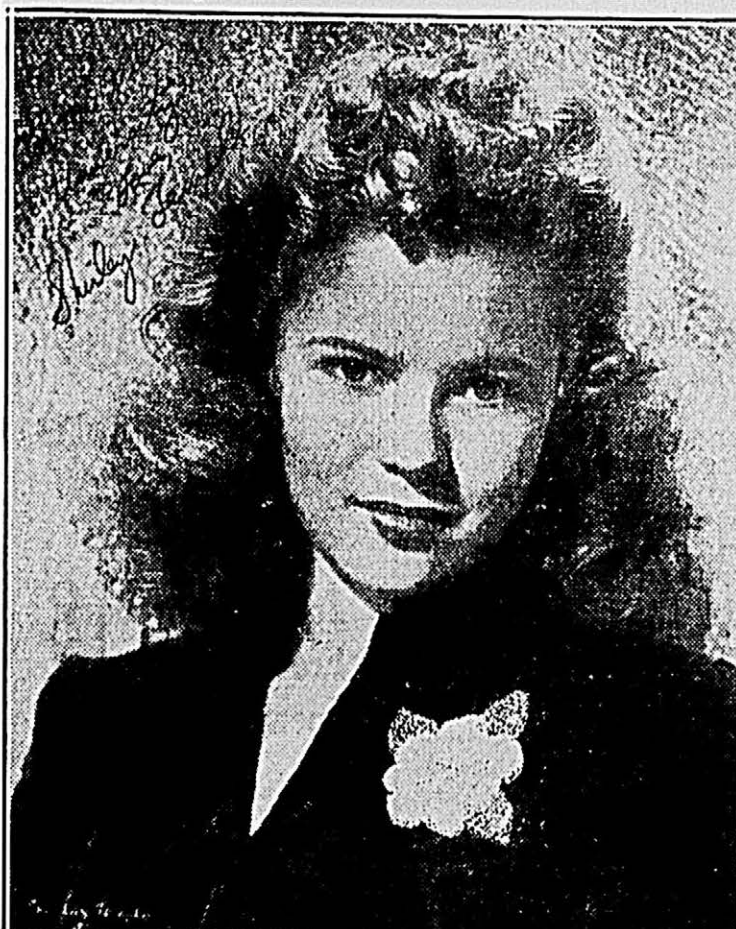

The Editor, McGill Daily,

Sir, May I quote a sentence and ask a question? D.E.W., writing in the Daily says "With the extension of franchise to include them (women) came co-education and even then they maintained their stable condition with the exception of a few who did not marry." That is the quotation.

Does D.E.W. imply that spinsterhood is a synonym for instability? That is the question.

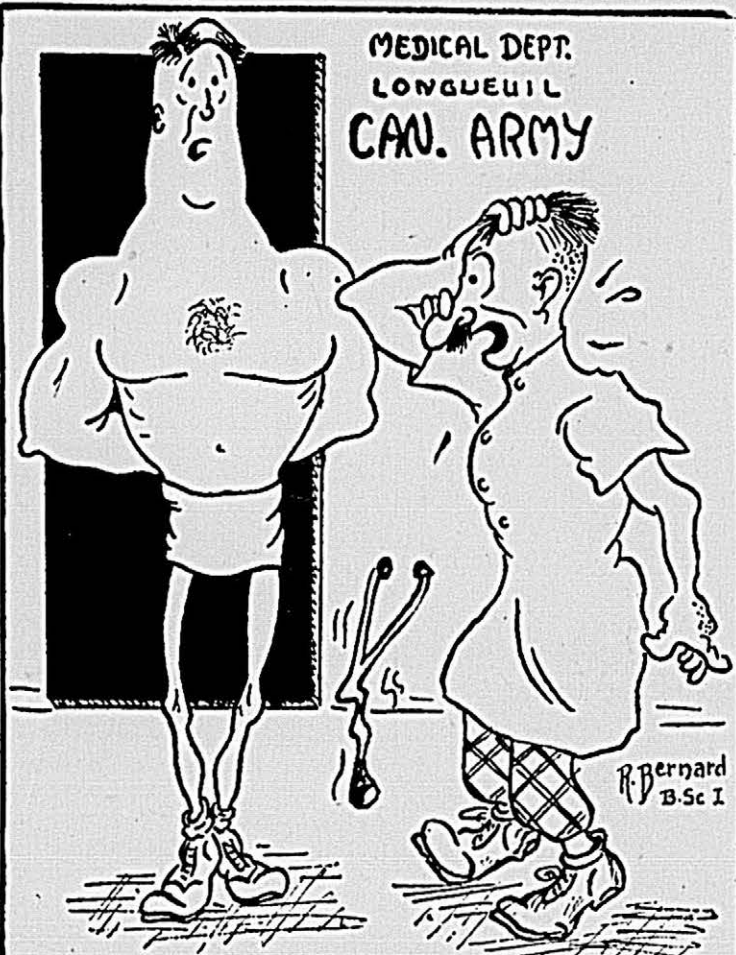

Respectfully,

R.Q.L.

McGill Second Team Vanquished by Verdun Grads 9-0

Redmen Alternates Show Bright Form In Exhibition Tilt

Future Seniors Gain Experience; Display Great Grid Promise Against More Powerful Grads

The McGill football team suffered its second defeat of the afternoon on Saturday when the Second team fell victim to the Verdun Grads 9-0 in a closely contested exhibition match. Coach Johnny Bennet took over the directing reins from Doug Kerr and led the second stringers through the extremely valuable session for the newcomers desiring Senior football experience.

Considering the fact that the McGill squad was made up of Senior substitutes playing against the veteran Verdun team, who are scheduled to meet the Seniors in the very near future, the second squad fared exceptionally well in holding the Grads.

Also the exhibition tilt gave the coaches Doug Kerr, Johnny Bennet and Johnny Cloghessy an opportunity of seeing the newcomers in action against experienced opposition. From the fine resulting play by these players it is almost certain that several of those who proved themselves capable in this game will be used in future McGill Q.R.F.U. games.

Experience Counts.
From the opening whistle the heavier line play and experience of the Grads proved to be the deciding factor in the Verdun superiority. In this tilt, as in the opener, the weight and experience of the opposing squad over the lighter and younger McGill team gave the play to the Grads. However by the time of the second game the rain had stopped and conditions had improved slightly.

The game opened up to a greater extent than the first and the Redmen were able to display their wide-open style and running ability.

Starring for the Redmen at quarterback Red McCavour sparked the team offensively and defensively. Tessler also proved capable and Jim Darragh and Cumming alternated with great ability in the snapback position. McEachran again showed great speed and agility as a running half and if conditions had favored the Red team with a dry field he would have been away many times more from the hands of opposing tacklers.

Kicking Good.
In the outside wing slots Jakalin and Chaikin shone brightly going very fast and hard to get by on the runbacks of kicks. Sammy Roth and Johnson handled the punting chores with ease while the linemen held the heavier Grad chargers in check.

Sparkling the Verdun men throughout the game was 'Sparky' Spordakis who was probably the best men on the field. His ability was centred in powerful running and plunging as well as long, towering punts to the McGill goal line. Opening the game with a quick touchdown by steady quarterback Hewart Jones, the Grads held the lead throughout the game.

Bon Cree former Western University star played an exceptionally fine middle wing as well as half-back Leo Banderia a onetime Queen's University highlight. James at outside received the forward that set up the only touchdown of the game.

Atchison Missing
While the Verdun team apparently was not at full strength, for the two stars Buddy Atchison and speedster Phil Dalglish were not in uniform, the Grads appeared today as a team the McGill senior squad would have no easy time with in the forthcoming game. The Verdunites scored the win by virtue of their size and weight alone against the second team. The Seniors will compare more favorably with them in this department and while not equalling the veterans in weight or experience, should put up a closely contested fight for the honors.

The line-up:
McGill: Darragh, McCavour, Rossi, McEachran, Chaikin, Stevens, Cave, Roth, Johnson, Cumming, Gursky, Grant, Corkran, Woods, Tessler, Ince, Amzell, Hamilton, Davey, Pipher, Jakalin, McCord, Roman.

Verdun: Conway, Cher, Koloris, Cree, Swarsky, James, Hogarth, Jones, Sabolla, Barberia, Spordakis, McNabb, Parsons, Zita, McCann, Smart.

Verdun Touchdown (Jones)
2nd Quarter.

FOOTBALL HIGHLIGHTS

by Bill Hastings

Combining luck with spirit, the McGill Redmen were determined to win Saturday's game at Molson's Stadium against Navy. It is quite possible that the game might have been won if the Red line had been stronger.

The large gains by Logan, Dixon and Pennyfather, of Navy plays, would have had the game in the bag. To counteract these good points, was the failure of the line to hold Ballon's kicks. Ballon, not being a high kicker, didn't have a chance, for as soon as the ball was snapped, Navy men were swarming over the line to block the kick.

Of course Saturday it rained, but then both teams had to play in the rain, didn't they?
The teams were nearly evenly matched, with maybe a little more weight on the Navy line. On both teams, the half line put on a good show, with star plungers and runners distributed evenly.

During the first few minutes of play, all players became laden with mud. It was noticed, that on the Red squad, most of the first mud-laden players remained on the field throughout the game. Occasionally a player with a clean red-sweater would dot the field, while the majority of clean-sweatered boys stayed on the bench. Navy had about two teams dressed and I believe all their men had their share of play.

A process of keeping the pigskin dry brought laughter from the few people in the stands. I didn't notice, until the second half of the game, that the snap of the team which had the ball, was always the last player to be in position for play. Each snap seemed to be having trouble with what looked like his shirt-tail. It wasn't until after the game that I found out it was a towel which each snap was stuffing into his pants before the ball went into play. Apparently the ball was dried before each play and the towel then cached, to keep dry for the next play.

The McGill cheerleaders made a great effort to produce some noise from the few enthusiasts who crowded under the shelters at the top of the bleachers. Some noise was produced but the Navy equalled it. Let's hope that for the next three games there will be a good turnout. After all, it can't rain every Saturday.

Fall Squash Matches To Begin November 1

With the coming of the cold weather the advent of indoor sports becomes of immediate importance. One of the most important of these sports is squash, and if the expected turnout can be taken as any indication of success of the sport this winter it is going to be one of the best seasons enjoyed by McGill squash players.

Already a large number of players have made their entries for the fall squash tournament. This tournament is scheduled to start on the first of November and entries may still be made on the notice board at the gym in the men's locker room. It is expected that there will be a large entry list for this tournament as young and old squash player alike have a good chance of coming off with top honors.

There will be two prizes for

Elaine Fildes Scores Victory In Tennis Final

Narrowly Defeats Mary Davidson Friday, 6-3, 6-4

In one of the most thrilling tennis matches ever witnessed at McGill, Elaine Fildes won the Women's Tennis Championship from Mary Davidson at the campus courts on Friday afternoon.

Elaine Fildes, a former runner-up in Provincial Junior titles, took the closely contested match from the ex-champion from Jamaica, Mary Davidson, in two very close straight sets to score of 6-3, 6-4.

Both girls had about equal ability and variety in their shots but Fildes had that sufficient narrow edge on her important shots to make them the winners more consistently.

It seemed that Mary Davidson had a little more finish to her services but failed to win her service games often enough.

The entire tourney was featured with startling upsets. In the quarter-finals the third and fourth seeded players Mary Tucker and Anne Fowler were defeated by Audrey DeBlois and Edith Gooding respectively.

On Wednesday, in the semi-finals Elaine Fildes ousted Audrey DeBlois 6-2, 6-3, while Mary Davidson won through over Edith Gooding 6-3, 6-3.

Swimming Meet To Feature Stars N.D.G. Pool Tues.

Curran, Athans Show Speed and Diving Also Kay Thompson

On Tuesday October 31st, members of the McGill Ladies' and Men's Swimming Clubs respectively, will present a "Students' Swimming and Diving Demonstration" at the N.D.G. Community Pool.

Owing to the limited spectator accommodation the show is definitely not open to the public and students desiring to gain admission must show their Athletic Cards.

The demonstration is scheduled to commence at 8.15 P.M. sharp and the Publicity director of the meet stated that those McGill students desiring seats are advised to arrive prior to this time.

All members of both the Ladies' and Men's Swimming Clubs will be taking part. Among the items on the program are the various racing starts, ordinary and trick turns, fundamental strokes, floating, plunging, ornamental swimming, and the like. Speed swimming via the crawl strokes, breast stroke and back stroke will also come in for their share of attention.

Featured on the program will be Kathleen Rawls Thompson, George Athans and Victor Curran. Curran will demonstrate his specialty, the Butterfly Breast Stroke. This is the newest of competitive swimming strokes, difficult to do, interesting to watch, and faster than any other breast stroke known. Victor Curran, who starred as quarterback in Saturday's football game, comes to McGill with quite a record not only as a swimmer but also as a swimming coach. During his competitive years he won a number of Provincial and State Championships and saw action in the British Empire Games.

George Athans, though a strong swimmer is particularly noted for his diving ability and will be seen in action on the springboards. Athans' diving record is a particularly outstanding one and includes many championships on the one meter and three meter springboards and the high tower. He scored a third in the diving at the British Empire Games when they were held in Australia; was the U.S. Pacific Coast Diving Champion for four consecutive years; won the Washington State and California State Titles a number of times; and placed this tournament, one for the winner and also a consolation prize to reward the runner up for his good showing.

It was stated by the manager of the squash team that entries can be made up until Saturday, October 28th.

R.V.C. Sports Roundup

By Anne Hughes

The archerettes at McGill will get off to a flying start this year under the management of Isobel Claig. The season opened on the twelfth with a practice from 4 to 6 in the R.V.C. Gym, which will be the usual time and meeting place throughout the year.

Intercollegiate Telegraphic meets as well as matches with MacDonald College are planned for the season, with a Beginners' Tournament sometime in December also slated. Previous experience in archery is not required and beginners are more than welcome down at the gym on Thursday.

Managers of the inter-section teams for the basketball tournament were elected at the M.W.S.A.A. convocation on Thursday. The first year section A representative is Thea Hertzberg, elected by acclamation; with section B represented by Peter Mace, and C by Frances Young, also elected by acclamation.

Second year D section is under the management of Mary Lemessier, while Joyce Elder and Scotty ed in both the National Inter-collegiate and National Open Championships in the U.S.A. In the summer of 1944 Athans won the Dominion Diving Title at Vancouver B.C. and today he is recognized as one of the best divers on the continent.

Kathleen Rawls Thompson, about whom the Daily carried a story a few days ago, will highlight the program with exhibitions of swimming and diving. In the 1932 and 1936 Olympic Championships she twice scored a second place for diving; and in the swimming she has broken any number of National and World Records. Her total of State, National and World Championships run into the hundreds and gained her the reputation of being one of the top swimmers and divers of all time.

MacDonald Trounced 26-5 At Loyola On Saturday

On Saturday at Loyola on a field softened by the rain a superior Loyola team overwhelmed MacDonald College 26-5.

Dean W. H. Brittain of Loyola officiated at the kick-off and from there on it was Loyola's game. In the Loyola backfield Privett ran rampant over the visiting team to amass a total of 16 points. He went over St. Anne's line for two major scores and also scored on a field goal. Not satisfied with this the versatile student from Loyola split the uprisings on three occasions when called upon to convert. Mackenzie and Waterston were the other boys from the Loyola college who went over for the other major scores. A pass from Brusiore to Mike Biega clicked for MacDonald's lone score of the game, which went unconverted.

Softball Practice Slated Today 5 p.m. at Gym

As Viv Cullen the softball manager has already announced the softball schedule will undoubtedly start the end of this month. It is in preparation for this that the first Arts and Science practice has been called for tonight at 5 p.m. It is hoped that there will be a large turnout so that there will be ample material from which to mold a strong team. There will be plenty of opportunity for big time players to show their stuff as there will be no lack of worthy opposition.

Entries should be made as soon as possible as the league is now being drawn up.

Golfers Victorious In U. of M. Match Despite Weather

Adamson, Ferguson Becker and Barbeau In Week-end Win

The McGill Golf Team scored a three stroke victory today over a quarter from the University of Montreal. The competition, a challenge match, took place yesterday at the Mount Royal Municipal Golf Course.

The McGill team, composed of Bernie Barbeau, Bill Adamson, Bruce Becker, and L. Ferguson, with Barbeau as captain, compiled an aggregate score of three hundred and eighty-eight strokes, as opposed to three hundred and ninety-one strokes for the U. of M. team, which consisted of Yvon Dion, captain, Rene Decarie, Guy Sicotte, and Jean Joyal.

Bad weather conditions made good scores impossible, and the best individual round was Dion's 85. Dion, who recently won a tournament at the U. of M., hits a long ball, which no doubt gave him an advantage in today's tournament.

Watson representing third year and fourth year respectively, including the Physical Education Students. Both were elected by acclamation. The School for Teachers' basketball team will be headed by Margaret Johnson, with the Physiotherapists and the Graduate Nurses yet to be heard from.

At the M.W.S.A.A. semi-annual general meeting Mary Tucker, manager of the Badminton club, outlined plans for the badminton players, including inter-section meets, and games with the Murray League and MacDonald College tentatively on the agenda. Badminton promises to continue to be one of the most popular sports on the campus. Practices are held every Tuesday night from 7 to 10 in the upper R.V.C. Gym, with Saturday evening matches with the boys' Badminton Club also on the program, followed by dancing and refreshments. At all practices birds and racquets are supplied by the club.

An exhibition fencing match between George Tully and Charles Otis will be held this coming Thursday evening, illustrating the use of the foil, sabre and duelling sword. Mr. Tully is the coach of the R.V.C. Fencing Club.

Cage Aspirants To Practice Today at Gym

Veteran Stars Plus Newcomers Exhibit Form

Inspired by a relatively large turnout, the McGill cage hopefuls went through the first formal workout Friday. Many new faces appeared at the workout and coach Van Wagner seemed pleased with the number of aspirants.

Stressing the fact of keeping in shape, the coach urged the candidates to keep practicing regularly until the opening game which is only three weeks off. Passing practice prevailed throughout the workout. Being divided into a few squads, the contestants attacked the different modes of passing with unmatched vigour, spurred on by some of last year's veterans.

Veteran Stars

As most of last season's stars will be carrying on for the Red and White hoopers this year, the general feeling in campus sports circles is that the Redmen will place pretty high in Montreal Basketball League standings. The McGill basketball mentor, however, warned against over-optimism for the coming schedule, mentioning previous experience during the last few seasons.

Along with holdovers Leonards, Rosentzweig, Davidson, Schacter, Deacon and Galipeau of last year's squad, the Red team will probably be bolstered by Roth and Gursky, former Sir George Williams cage stars, along with versatile Viv Cullen.

Attendance Urged

The candidates for both the

Athletic Cards

Admittance of McGill students to the McGill rugby and hockey games or any other activity in which McGill is participating, will be permitted only upon presentation of Athletic Cards. Thus students who intend to attend the future McGill football and hockey games must obtain this Athletic Card at the Athletic's office. Cards will be issued free to the students upon presentation of their Library Card.
